Is It Aging — or Just Tension?

A 2-minute check — and a 60-second test you can feel for yourself.

You look in the mirror and see a heavier brow, tired eyes, a little less lift than a few years ago — and you think: this is just aging.

Often, it isn't. Much of what we call "aging" in the face is tension and slowed circulation — muscles that have quietly tightened, fluid that isn't moving. It's not something a cream can reach — but it's also not just something you have to accept.

IN THE NEXT FEW MINUTES

1. Find your most tense zone with a quick 5-zone check.
2. Do a 60-second test — on one side of your face — so you can feel your own tension, with your own fingers.

THE BOJIN METHOD · STEP 1 — FIND YOUR ZONE

The 5-Zone Face Check

For each area, circle the number that best matches how it feels most days. Your highest number is where we'll start.

1 rested 2 a little 3 tense

	Eyes Puffiness, heaviness, or a tired look in the morning.	1 2 3
	Brows & Forehead Tightness, a furrowed feeling, or the “11” lines by evening.	1 2 3
	Cheeks & Smile Lines Cheeks sitting a little lower, or deeper smile lines lately.	1 2 3
	Jaw & Neck Clenching, tightness, or a little fullness under the chin.	1 2 3
	Glow & Circulation Skin looking flat or dull rather than fresh.	1 2 3

Got your highest zone? Good — now, before your full map, let's feel what “tension” actually is.

THE BOJIN METHOD · STEP 2 — FEEL IT FOR YOURSELF

The One-Side Test

Find the tension with your own fingers.

Using just your fingertips — nothing to buy, nothing to learn:

1. On your left side, gently press just below the inner end of your eyebrow — where the brow meets the bridge of your nose.
2. Press lightly and hold for a moment. Do you feel a small firm spot, a little knot, or a tender ache? That's tension.
3. Now press the same spot on your right side. Does one side feel tighter — or more tender — than the other?

Most people are surprised. One side is often noticeably tighter — and they never knew it was there.

That firm little spot isn't aging, and it isn't something a cream can reach. It's tension your face has been holding — often for years.

You just found it. The question everyone asks next is: how do you let it go?

THE BOJIN METHOD · YOUR NEXT STEP

You felt the tension. Here's how it's released.

Letting that tension go isn't about pressing harder, and it isn't about creams or pulling your skin. It's a gentle, method-led routine you do at home — the right spots, in the right order, following the natural lines of your face. That's the Bojin Method. Start with your fingertips; a smooth stainless-steel bojin stick makes it easier later.

> Honestly: it eased in over months, so it eases back over steady, quiet minutes — a calm daily practice, not a one-time fix. But you just felt the very first step for yourself.
